A Message from Fr. Sunny

Never Stop Learning About Your Faith

As I count down the days of my time with you, my dear MQH family, I would like to take this opportunity to leave a few tenets that I have found to be very important for my own life of faith, hoping that you will find the truth and inspiration in them as well.

This weekend, on the third Sunday of Easter, I was to leave you with this: NEVER STOP LEARNING ABOUT YOUR FAITH. The mystery of God is so deep that in our lifetime, we will not get to the bottom of it. It is so rich that it will continue to yield more and more insight and inspiration. That is because our God is a living God, and the Church and All-That-She-Is possesses a living mystery that we are unable to fully comprehend with our historical minds.

SYMBOLIC ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS. As a priest, I am constantly in search for deeper meanings, and more effective expressions of what I believe in. I sometimes embody it in the form of a poem or poetic prayer, if not a song or even perhaps a photograph, a painting, or another artform. These expressions are possible especially when I encounter a new way of talking about God, or another expression of my love and trust in Him. I love listening to new songs that convey the ancient sentiments of discovery or longing for God. Some of the fruits of these divine meanderings could end up being in my homily or in a new book of poetry or song. But the point is, the very source of all of these is utterly inexhaustible.

CATHOLIC WRITERS AND LITERATURE. Reading is another way that we can gain from the spiritual insight of others and thereby creating its own application in our souls. Reading the lives of the saints, the encyclical of the popes, the writings of the early church fathers, and the current spiritual writings of contemporary authors and theologians, are just the immediate things that come to mind. Imagine if you read the spiritual classics like St. Therese's the "Story of a Soul" or Saint Teresa of Avila's "The Interior Castle" and St. John Paul II's "Theology of the Body". These words are life-changing and they contain within them truths that will be relevant to every generation, time and season.

SCRIPTURAL MEDITATION AND REFLECTION. One of the things I love about our Focolare Community here is the fact that every month, people gather together to share their concrete experiences with scripture passages. In our monthly sharing of the Word of Life at Barrett Hall, we discover that the Lord has not only gave us the Scripture as Word of Life, He also provided the various opportunities to live out the verse of the month. As people share and participate in this communion of souls around the Scripture chosen for the month, we encourage and inspire each other, thanks to the work of the Holy Spirit in our midst. The Focolare Bible Sharing is always an open door for anyone who desires to join.

What are you doing to learn more about your own faith? Learning about God and His ongoing creative interplay with the world is a lifelong venture. Learning is not only for the young children who go to catechism. It is for all of us, including myself. I pray that you may grow in your passion for discovering the wisdom of God and may each moment of discovery be full of joy and gratitude. God bless you!

With the gladness of the Eastertide,

Fr. Sunny Castillo

SUICIDE PREVENTION:*Listening For and Helping to Create Life Worth Living

Monday, April 22 @ 7:00 – 8:30 PM
Mary Queen of Heaven Parish Barrett Hall

Presenter: Bradley Burnett

Depressed, severely depressed, and suicidal people often are not inspired to create a quality future for themselves and have lost touch with the value of life.

This presentation meets the struggling person in his or her shoes in the moment and leads them to be inspired not only live, but to love being alive. And it empowers the helper – e.g., family member, friend, teacher, neighbor, coworker, etc. – to help shift the struggling person's context to that of choosing life and generating a life worth living.

Presented by Bradley Burnett, a trained suicide prevention counselor, you will first hear his personal story of his own son's life and death – his triumphs, struggles, and ultimate death by his own hand. Brad will share the detail of his conversations with his son about whether and why his life was worth living, exposing both the skill set Brad had ... and, sadly, did not have ... at the time. You will then learn skills and gain hands-on experience on how to become an inspired and inspiring listener who puts the struggling person back in touch with what inspires him or her.

At the conclusion of this presentation, you should be able to:

- Identify the warning signs of suicidal behavior and ask the question of a struggling person which leads to their freedom and safety;
- Listen more effectively to the speaking (and lives) of others for what is possible for them;
- Glean from another's speaking and actions what inspires and interests them; and
- Lead another to generate their own thoughts and actions to create for themselves a successful future.

All are welcome to this practical and much-needed presentation. For information, contact Joe Gornick at (630) 601-8343 or gornickjoe@gmail.com.
